Day 2-3 Weather Hazards

Valid: 0800 Sun - 0800 Tue

No Significant Weather
Impacts Expected

*Threat levels are based on FEMA Region 6 criteria. State or local threat level criteria may differ.

Hazardous Weather

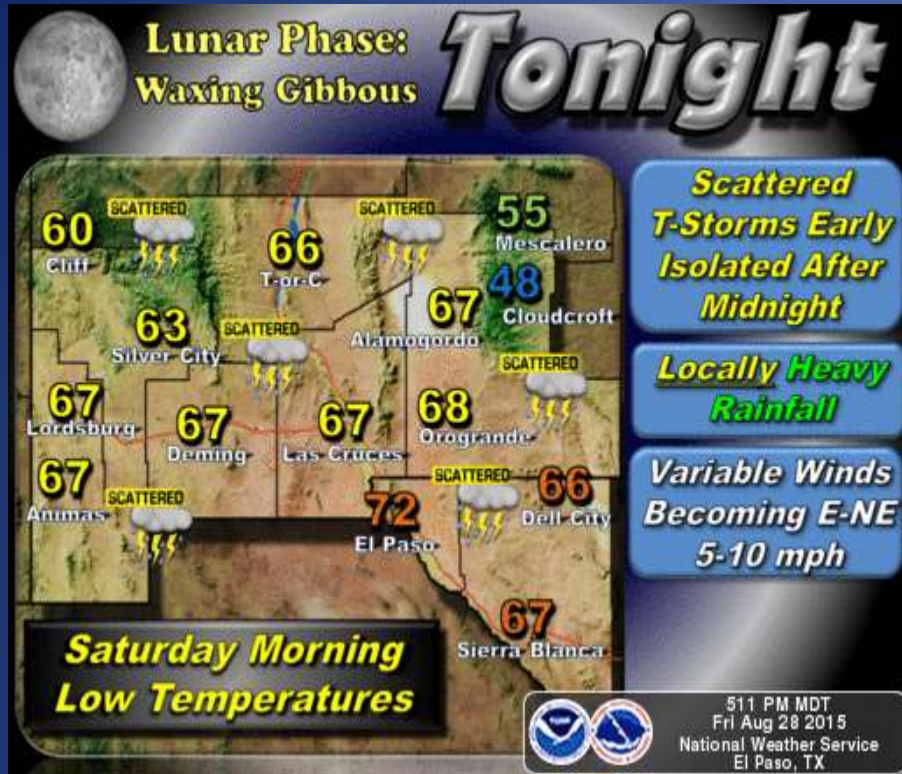

Today will be partly sunny and hot with highs in the lower and middle 90s. There is a slight chance of showers and thunderstorms through sunset. Only light rainfall is expected.

A cold front lingering across the area could result in isolated showers and thunderstorms particularly across portions of the southern South Plains and Rolling Plains. A little cooler today given the slow diminishing of cloud cover and intermittent periods of light north surface winds.

Hazardous Weather

Expect scattered thunderstorms across most of the area this evening...lingering (but becoming more isolated) after Midnight. Some storms will produce locally torrential downpours. Winds will be variable in the evening...become East to NE 5-10 mph (potentially stronger and more erratic near thunderstorms).

Daytime heating will cause isolated to scattered showers and thunderstorms to develop this afternoon and evening. Gusty winds, brief heavy rain, and occasional lightning will be the main threats from these storms. Easterly winds at the surface will help bring in slightly cooler temperatures with highs closer to normal in the upper 80s to middle 90s.
